I learned about Kant's Deontology, Mill's Utilitarianism, 20th century ethical challenges from writers like Young, Arendt, and Jonas, and Epistemological Ethics in Joyce, and Gilman. I also learned more about argument and problem construction.
I learned a lot about ethical thought and what constitutes morality

Describe how aspects of this course (lectures, discussions, labs, assignments, etc.) contributed to your learning.

Comments
Discussions were always super interesting and helped me understand the readings better. Professor Ferguson's reading questions were typically quite interesting and helped me think about the texts in interesting ways. Writing seminars were usually pretty interesting and often helped me improve on my current writing assignments.
The in class discussions were very very good. Writing seminars a little less helpful

Comments
Professor Ferguson is a fabulous professor who facilitated interesting and enriching discussions. Also, he was incredibly available for office hours which were always really useful for my learning. I also always appreciated the context he always gave us on our readings at the beginning of class.
in–class discussions were so engaging
Professor Ferguson moderated excellent and respectful discussions. I learned much from listening to his responses to classmates' comments and questions.
The discussions in class were very very good.

Comments
The course was not incredibly difficult if you are interested in the topics.
It was modestly difficult. I took two quarters of Phil per before and it was the same.
I had taken philosophy in senior year of high school so was prepared, but he grades quite harshly.
