It is important to consider context when looking at psychological processes.
the mind
I learned about the mind in different contexts, such as in relationships and even in AI.
How variable and context–dependant behavior can be. Even subtle aspects about one's environment can explain in varying degrees behavior how to analyze psychological papers and think about psychology in different contexts.

Describe how aspects of this course (lectures, discussions, labs, assignments, etc.) contributed to your learning.

Comments
Lectures and discussion are the basis of this course. Depending on your professor you may need to pay attention to one or the other more. For me, discussion was most helpful in understanding the week's topic and exploring other aspects of the content. Prof. Emery was great about this, and provided slides for each day with interactive elements.
the discusions
The topics in the discussions were interesting. It helped that everyone felt comfortable speaking.
Lectures were interesting although some were rather... redundant
Lectures were somewhat helpful and interesting but not necessary to attend to do well in the class

very nice isntructor
The set up of mind was really great for a core class. Did not take an intensive amount of time and the content and the writing were quite helpful and useful for other classes

Thinking about your time in the class, what aspect of the instructor's teaching contributed most to your learning?

Comments
Class time was crucial to understanding the week's topic in depth.
the discusions
I liked the effort she put into making discussion slides. They really helped to facilitate discussions. Also, she gave a lecture on intimate relationships, which is her topic of research, and it was really interesting and engaging.
Prof. Emery was great, clearly dedicated time for preparation and overall indicated that she cares about pur learning.
facilitating discussions and brining in outside research to supplement what was covered in the lectures/readings

What could the instructor modify to help you learn more?

Comments
A bit more flexibility towards the end of the course. Prior to this last quarter of mind our final essays were due later in the week, however ours was due on the 2nd day of finals week. This was a bit challenging to churn out given the other courses that I had exams for. A bit more grace would have been nice.

very easy class you do not have to every show up to lecture so just show up to class once a week and do your weekly assignment and you will get an A– guaranteed. And if you do good on your final essay then you will get an A.
Great class, very interesting and helpful for research
