How to use r to summarize and analyze results from studies in the social sciences social science inquiry
How to read scientific reports.
I learned how to code in R, analyze linear regressions and relationships between variables, read experimental literature, and express my ideas effectively.
Analysing linear models and learning how to code in R.
How to code in R and the basics of linear regression. I had no experience with R going in and came out feeling like I could do basic data analysis so I definitely learned a lot.

Describe how aspects of this course (lectures, discussions, labs, assignments, etc.) contributed to your learning.

Comments
Lectures and assignments were most helpful for learning r
Lecture and homeworks.
The lectures, readings, and homework assignments all contributed to my learning as they allowed me to work on topics that I might have been confused about before.
Class is always very interesting w Professor Cooley!
Lectures were good for synthesizing core concepts and explaining some of the code. Homework assignments were very helpful for getting used to R and the final assignment was fun because we got to choose our own datasets to analyze. The readings were disconnected from the material sometimes but were still interesting, and the supplementary readings on stats/R were helpful.

Cooley is fantastic
Prof Cooley is absolutely one of the best professors I've had at UChicago, and he has made this course a wonderful, low-stress experience. He is a great guy and created such a comfortable learning environment. I hope he knows how appreciated he is, even if our class didn't always show it. Grading-wise—he is very generous, and gives us the answer keys for each assignment before its due, so there really isn't a reason to do poorly on the assignments.
Amazing professor!
In the end I feel like the R portion of this course was mostly self-taught with some guidance, though this is to be expected because everyone is at a different level and it's difficult to cover more than the basics in lectures. Prof. Cooley was still really helpful with questions and helping on the homework assignments, and this is definitely manageable even if you have 0 programming experience.

I would recommend this course to:

	No	Yes
Highly-motivated and well-prepared students	0.00%	100.00%
Anyone interested in the topic	0.00%	100.00%

Thinking about your time in the class, what aspect of the instructor's teaching contributed most to your learning?

Lectures and feedback on errors in coding assignments
He is very good at leading discussion.
The instructor is knowledgeable and engaging. I enjoy the lectures a lot as he explains the topics very well, which helps me with the readings and the homework problem sets.
Break out discussions.
Demonstrating concepts with examples in R and engaging the class to make sure we understood the concepts.

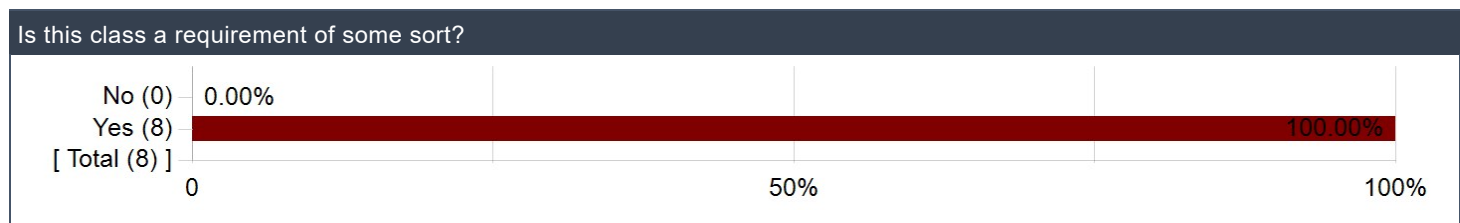

What could the instructor modify to help you learn more?

Comments
Not much!
Not much, the course homepage was a little bit difficult to read when finding the readings sometimes though so a formatted PDF/Word document would be nice

Comments
Helpful to have some background in stats and r, but the course layout assumes no prior experience so it's definitely approachable for anyone not too bad
Not very difficult but very interesting
Not difficult at all. He walks you through all of the coding you need to know, and you're allowed to use ChatGPT for when you get stuck. Very low-stress, but still fruitful class
Easy class! He helps you with every assignment!
Had no programming experience coming in except 1 semester of Python that I forgot most of, definitely manageable for people starting from scratch if you're willing to put in a little bit of effort to get off the ground at the very beginning
