how to edit videos and how to more closely observe videos/films
I learned how to become a viewer of media art as well as how to make media art of my own. I also learned a basic understanding of how to use adobe premiere pro.
How to interpret art and create our own meaningful art.

Describe how aspects of this course (lectures, discussions, labs, assignments, etc.) contributed to your learning.

Comments
there were some screenings some of which felt just strange, but as i went through the course, i began to appreciate the odd and specific aspects of these films. going out to AIC and recording our personal project was a bit daunting, but receiving feedback during class time made attending class worth it because the professor was there to help guide us in the right direction.
Class meeting times were useful in seeing how to view media art, and learning how to make it on our own. Going to the Art Institute and seeing the experimental movies were cool learning experiences in seeing what media art looks like.
This course taught me how to engage in art in more unique ways very laidback but still interesting and fun. i honestly just took the first ARTV course i could get and did not have any interest in video editing, but i came to really enjoy it throughout this course.

There was about a month where I had to go somewhere for this class every weekend. It wasn't impossible and the actual expeditions were usually fine. However, I think the out of class commitment should be more clearly emphasized.

I would recommend this course to:

one–on–one feedback time and in class demonstrations on how to use premiere pro and the camera.
He heard each of us out when we discussed pieces of art. His feedback and opinions about media art were very helpful and interesting to hear.
The assignments and projects

What could the instructor modify to help you learn more?

Comments
more clear instructions for the assignments plz.
If there was more structure to the assignments and a rubric for what we needed to include

Please comment on the level of difficulty of the course relative to your background and experience.

Comments
not very difficult even as someone who had absolutely no experience with film and editing
As someone with no experience the difficulty was manageable, but still intellectually stimulating.
